

“My Experience Of Over-Coming Conflict”

Conflict happened all the time between friend and family member or even strangers or the people at jobs. The best thing is to avoid the conflict. In some causes conflict can cause serious consequences. I being a student of secondary school faced many unavoidable conflicts with my class fellows and friends.

I had a friend with home. I had a conflict because over interests did not match. Both of us like different things and while I was trying to be a friend to another girl in my class, she just left my friendship and called my interest stupid and I answered her the same after that she did not communicated with me. Although I think this conflict could be resolved. If we tried to learn from each other mistakes.

Who Ever, a week later we accidently met, talked and heard each other. I realized that my friend was just uncomfortable in the presence of strangers. As a result we agreed that we would alternate over behavior and activities

Thus the basis for resolving any conflict is the desire of people to listen and try to understand each other. In my cause the conflict ended with a win.

Win results although we both made concessions. Whoever unresolved conflicts are lead to negative consequences and can bring unpleasant and depressing feeling for them.
